

Directions – Call for Authors/Guidelines for Article Submission

Directions is one of NAHCR's valued membership benefits. Published electronically four times per year and distributed to all active, associate, institutional, government and subscription members, it is read cover-to-cover by NAHCR members and is often cited in reports and recruitment plans.

NAHCR members are the best resource for information on current events, innovations and concerns that affect health care recruitment. Share your expertise! Contribute to Directions.

Only original articles are considered, but new original work that expands on issues raised in previous articles, books or speeches is acceptable. Articles should be:

- New, fresh, timely and relevant
- Thorough and easy to understand
- Factual, not opinion based
- Strictly educational and informative in nature (not promotional or self-serving to any given organization)
- Unbiased, objective and nonpartisan; well balanced, addressing all points of view
- Written from the second-person (instructive) or third-person (narrative) perspective (not written in first person)

Whenever, possible, include case studies, examples, applications and recommended resources. Illustrations and images, including graphs, charts and photographs, are also encouraged.

Articles should be in Microsoft Word format and attached to an email, not to exceed 1,000 words in length. Please include a working title, the name of the author and an author bio (not to exceed 20 words). Submit to NAHCR headquarters at twade@kmgnet.com.
